DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is responsive to amendment filed on 03/31/2004.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-7, 10-16, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Aratani et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,538,675).

Regarding claims 1, 10, 13 and 18, referring to Fig. 6, referring to Figs. 2-12, Aratani teaches a method operating plural computers (1-1 to 1-4) displayed on a display device (13) having at least a first window (1-1) that displays information from a main computer (i.e., image source 1-1) and a second window (1-2) that displays information from a remote computer (i.e., image source 1-2), comprising: controlling data from the main computer and the remote computer with an input device (21) associated with one of the computers; and manipulating and sharing data displayed on the first window (1-1) of the main computer with data display on a picture within a picture window of the second window (1-2) of the remote computer using a common memory buffer (6) by dragging data from one window (1-1) and dropping the data into the other window (1-2) using the input device (21) (from col. 4, line 8 to col. 5, line 45, from col. 18, line 7 to col. 54, and from col. 20, line 20 to col. 21, line 16).

Art Unit: 2674

Regarding claim 2, Aratani further teaches the input device controls a cursor on the display device to control and manipulate displayed information (from col. 4, line 8 to col. 5, line 45, from col. 18, line 7 to col. 54).

Regarding claims 3 and 16, Aratani further teaches the main computer and the remote computer are connected by a network (5) (from col. 4, line 8 to col. 5, line 45).

Regarding claim 4, Aratani further teaches the display device (13) is a picture within a picture display device and the first window (1-1) is a main window and the second window (1-2) is a picture within a picture window (Fig. 2)

Regarding claim 5, Aratani further teaches the cursor is located in the second window (1-2) and a movement signal from the input device (21) is sent from the remote computer (image source 1-2) to the second window (2-1) (from col. 4, line 8 to col. 5, line 45, from col. 18, line 7 to col. 54).

Regarding claim 6, Aratani further teaches sending the movement signal further comprises transmitting the movement signal over a network (5) connecting the main computer (image source 1-1) and the remote computer (image source 1-2) (from col. 4, line 8 to col. 5, line 45, from col. 18, line 7 to col. 54).

Regarding claim 7, Aratani further teaches using the input device to move the cursor between the first window and the second window (from col. 11, line 32 to col. 12, line 15).

Regarding claims 11, 14 and 15, Aratani further teaches determining in which window the cursor is located (from col. 11, line 32 to col. 12, line 15).

Regarding claim 12, Aratani further teaches sending a movement signal from the input device to the window where the cursor is located (from col. 11, line 32 to col. 12, line 15).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 8 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aratani et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,538,675) and further in view of Ur (U.S. Patent No. 6,249,283).

Regarding claim 8, Aratani further teaches information displayed on the display device is shared between the first window and the second window by the common clipboard (from col. 18, line 7 to col. 54).

Aratani differs from claim 8 in that he does not specifically teach information displayed on the display device may be cut and pasted between the first window and the second window. However, referring to Fig. 2, Ur teaches information displayed on the display device (20) may be cut and pasted between the first window (21) and the second window (22) (from col. 2, line 60 to col. 3, line 43). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the information displayed on the display device may be cut and pasted between the first window and the second window as taught by Ur in the system of Aratani in order to provide an information processing system with storing and catching the information easily and efficiently.

Regarding claim 9, the combination of Aratani and Ur teaches storing cut and paste data in the common memory buffer (i.e., clipboard) (from col. 2, line 60 to col. 3, line 43).

Response to Arguments

6. In response to Applicant's argument that "none of the cited references disclose manipulating and sharing data between a main window of one computer and a picture window of another computer by dragging data from one window and dropping the data into the other window". However, Aratani teaches manipulating and sharing data between a main window (1-1) of one computer and a picture window (1-2) of another computer by dragging data from one window and dropping the data into the other window (from col. 20, line 20 to col. 21, line 16). Therefore the limitations of claims invention 1-16 and 18 are still met by Aratani and Ur.

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
